Economics serving society

The Paris School of Economics is a French research center of international standing in Economics:

• It results from the merger of leading research and teaching institutions, bringing together more than 100 teachers and 350 students.

• The Paris School of Economics offers general and specialized Master’s and PhD programmes taught in English.

• It also provides continuing education programmes tailored to professional needs and leads research activities for national and international entities (companies, administrations, NGO...).