Health inequalities and urbanization, 17th-20th centuries
Workshop for WEHC 2018

March 30, 2018
Paris School of Economics – Room R1-09

Opening with coffee 09:30 - 10:00

Session 1: Water reconsidered 10:00 – 12:00

The role of safe water and sewerage on the German urban mortality decline
Daniel Gallardo Albarran (University of Groningen)

Water on Tap: Constant Water Supply and London's Mortality Decline, 1876-1910
Nicky Tynan (Dickinson College), with Martin Saavedra and Werner Troesken

Lunch

Session 2: Ethnicity and race 13:00-15:00

Unraveling the Social Ecology of Polio
Andrew Noymer (University of California Irvine), with Amarah C. Mauricio

Rise and Fall of the Know-Nothing Party
Marcella Aslan (Stanford Medical School), with Katherine Eriksson and Gregory Niemesh

* Coffee Break 15:00 – 15:30 PM *

Session 3: Urban contexts 15:30 – 17:30

Social Inequality in Adult Mortality in Swedish Cities during Urbanization: Evidence from Full-Count Micro Census Data
Bjorn Eriksson (Lund University), with Martin Dribe

The Long-Term Effects of the Openings of Maternity Hospitals (1934–1946) on Health and Labour Market Performance in Sweden
Volha Lazuka (Lund University)

General discussion 17:30 – 18:30

Workshop funded by LABEX OSE - ouvrir la Science Économique, INED, and Northwestern University and arranged by Joseph Ferrie and Lionel Kesztenbaum.